

Take a Virtual Tour of Watershed

We are excited to show you our recently completed deep-green 72,000 GSF Class A+ office and retail project, Watershed. This Living Building Pilot project goes beyond any of our firm’s previous projects to show how new developments can be a regenerative force to stressed natural systems. Furthermore, it incorporates art, beauty, on-site water capture, and dramatic energy reduction while enhancing its community in the Fremont neighborhood.

We can't wait to share this building in person through tours and site visits, however the current state of the world won't allow that for quite some time. Additionally, several of the tenant spaces are under construction.

But here’s the good news: You can tour Watershed virtually!

For the Virtual 2020 Living Future unconference, we transitioned from an in-person tour of the project to a guided virtual tour. In just 15 minutes, you can sip your morning coffee and learn all about this project’s innovative features from the comfort of your home.

[SURVEY] Creativity & Collaboration During COVID-19

In a matter of months, we’ve all had to adapt to a virtual workplace. How has this impacted creativity and collaboration? WT Marketing Director Erin Hatch has assembled a survey that seeks to address this question for an industry research project. How has your team adapted? Have you felt more or less creative while working from home?

Share your thoughts and you’ll receive the results of the study, and be entered for the chance to win a $50 Amazon gift card.
